17 ACRE ESTATE | 10 MINUTES FROM LONDON BRIDGE

A century of filming history

Located in Greenwich, London, the Old Royal Naval College is the riverside masterpiece by Sir Christopher Wren, situated in a UNESCO World Heritage Site which has been delivering the perfect location for filming since 1925.

Architectural and scenic versatility

From the stunning Painted Hall—one of Europe's finest Baroque interiors—to sweeping lawns and grand courtyards, the site offers a range of settings suited for historical dramas, period pieces, and modern films alike.

Flexible location for all production types

Our estate provides flexible options for photographers, press, TV producers, and film directors, regularly hosting everything from adverts and photoshoots to major Hollywood productions.

Supporting filmmaking while conserving heritage

Each production contributes directly to the preservation of this historic site, ensuring the legacy of Sir Christopher Wren's architectural landmark can be enjoyed by current and future generations.

WHAT WE OFFER

Our experienced and dedicated team are on hand to help you every step of the way, from initial enquiries to final wrap. We offer a range of services and facilities to make your production run smoothly, including:

ON-SITE UNIT BASE

Convenient spaces across the estate for cast, crew, and equipment to ensure streamlined logistics.

FLEXIBLE FOR CREW SIZE

Experienced in hosting crews of all sizes with adaptable spaces and support available for projects big and small.

COMFORTABLE AND ACCOMMODATING

Holding areas and green rooms of various sizes to meet your team's needs.

DIVERSE LOCATIONS AND SETTINGS

From period-perfect interiors to dramatic outdoor views, we offer settings that span eras and atmospheres.

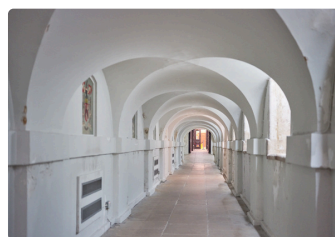

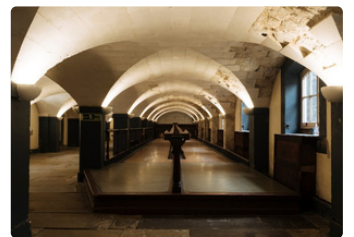

LOCATION AND ACCESS

Easily accessible by road, DLR, and train mainline services, with ample space for parking vehicles.

SPACES

Our key filming areas include the Painted Hall, Chapel, Admiral's House, colonnades, and the spacious upper and lower grand squares overlooking the Thames. The site's historic architecture can double for various eras and places, making it ideal for diverse production needs.

TRANSFORM THE SITE, TRANSFORM YOUR NEXT PROJECT

Filming at the Old Royal Naval College is managed by the Greenwich Foundation, a charity established in 1997. All income from filming supports the conservation of our historic site and enhances public access. Explore our full filming history on IMDb, showcasing productions shot on-site since 1925.

As a Grade I listed site, Scheduled Monument, and sitting within Maritime Greenwich World Heritage Site, the Old Royal Naval College is of international historical and architectural significance. We therefore kindly ask all users to help preserve these historic masterpieces by ensuring, at all times, that no damage occurs to the fabric of the buildings.
